Cynthia,
Thank you so much for the information. We or a representative of ours might possibly attend.

We have a question. We have information that involves a patented process by which the CFAC site (and others like it) could be remediated without having to haul tons and tons of toxic dirt out of the area and transport it to other areas of the country. Who would be the major contacts (in the organizations with which you're familiar) that would be involved in making the decision as to how remediation of the CFAC site will be handled? We would like to explain the process to those people who will be making these decisions; and would greatly appreciate the names and emails of any individuals affiliated with your organization who might be able to help us in this matter.
Thank you for your help.

Regards,

Terry Vanderpan
Leslie Knutson

EPA does not have any public meetings planned for the near future, but I just received the attached notice for a meeting of the Community Liaison Panel. I believe the meeting you referenced in your email was for that group as well. I would suggest asking for minutes of that meeting from the contact on the attached announcement.

I see from the Hungry Horse Newspaper that they recently had a meeting that we would have attended had we known in advance of the meeting.
